Roosevelt Leader Minimizes Prohibition Issue For Party

Gilbert M. Hitchcock Believes Economic Question Paramount

MURRAY AT CHICAGO

"And Roosevelt Won't Be Nominated," Says Alfalfa Bill

CHICAGO.—(AP)—Gilbert M. Hitchcock, Roosevelt chairman of the Democratic resolutions committee, declared Thursday for a party platform emphasizing economic issues rather than prohibition.

Chairman Raskob of the Democratic National Committee declared on his arrival here several days ago that prohibition was the chief issue of the campaign.

Governor Murray of Oklahoma arrived Thursday, and in an interview declared Roosevelt would not be nominated. He refused to commit himself on prohibition, saying that economic issues need most of the attention of the national convention.

Alfred E. Smith told newspaper men he did not believe the candidate would be named on the first ballot.

Wells in Desert Make Fowl Refuge

Marsh Land Springs Up From Deep Wells in Arid Nevada

ELY, Nev.—(AP)—Deep wells sunk years ago in an unsuccessful attempt to develop a water resource may make possible creation of a wild fowl refuge in the desert country 65 miles southwest of here.

After being capped for a long time, the wells have been flowing heavily and have created several square miles of marsh land.

A proposed plan approved by a biological survey worker provides for sinking 20 additional wells to produce 100 miles of swamps and marshes.

Texas Girl Aimed to Write, Acting

Lovely Katherin Mauk Finds Gestures as Compelling as Words

By William Gaines

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Katherine Mauk came to New York from San Angelo, Texas, last November, with a desire to succeed as an author.

She wanted to know New York life, and write about it. She had no illusion that publishers were waiting to grab up her manuscripts, so she looked in the "want ad" columns for a job. She found one, as a secretary in an orphanage.

Broadway and the people of the show world fascinated her. "This was the life she wanted to write about. Soon it occurred to Miss Mauk that the best way to learn about any sort of life is to live it.

She came here equipped with beauty, brown eyes and golden hair, as well as her knowledge of stenography. Carrying on at the orphanage, she got an engagement to appear in the floor show at a restaurant. The hours did not conflict. She was able to see Broadway from the inside.

Broadway also saw Miss Mauk, and recognized the charm of the 22-year-old "Texas girl" (maybe in all fairness it should be recorded that she was born in Clovis, N. Mex.)

Florenz Ziegfeld heard about her. Now she is in his revival of "Show Boat," and her beauty stands out in an ensemble that includes such glorified girls as Mollie Edwards, Caju Eric and Elsie Rossi. The experience at the orphanage is something of the past.

"But," says Miss Mauk, who also says she is Scotch-Irish, "I learned a lot about life there, too."

The stage is thrilling, she finds. She can sing and dance, and she won't turn down opportunities to get ahead in musical productions. But whatever she does, wherever she goes, on the stage or off, Miss Mauk will be writing about life as she lives it.

Only when she knows success as an author will her fondest dream come true.

Will Fighting Jim Reed Manage to Come Back

Missouri Backing Man Who Blocked Wilson's League

Wilson's Denunciation Failed to Beat Him for Senate in 1922

SENATOR 18 YEARS

Controls Missouri's 36 Votes for Convention's Opening

EDITOR'S NOTE—Following is the third in a series of five articles on favorite sons who will figure in the Democratic national convention.

By Robert Talley

NEA Service Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—A turbulent political career of more than 30 years and one of the greatest comebacks in history lie behind him. Now ex-Senator Jim Reed, a gray-haired veteran past the allotted threescore-and-ten, is making his final bid for public honor.

Missouri's "favorite son" in the race for the Democratic nomination is one of the oldest men ever to seek the highest prize within the gift of his party. If he should be elected in November, the honor would come within a few days of his 71st birthday.

Jim Reed's record has been one of the most remarkable in the history of political comeback.

Twelve years ago, after he had broken with President Woodrow Wilson on the League of Nations issue, he was rotten-egged in Ardmore, Okla., condemned by the North Carolina legislature as a traitor who ought to be shot, threatened in Arkansas with being ridden out of town on a rail.

"Kid Us of Reed" clubs rose overnight in his home state, he was upbraided by millions in his own party and even barred from the Democratic national convention at San Francisco.

That was in 1920, when it seemed every man's hand was turned against him. With dismal prospects for success, Jim Reed came up for re-election to the Senate in 1922. From his sick bed at Washington, Wilson sent a scathing denunciation of Reed and an appeal for Missouri voters to elect his Democratic opponent.

Jim Reed met this problem as he has met every other problem in his long career, by fighting. "Fighting, fighting, fighting; everything I've ever got in this world I've had to fight for," he once said. Instead of trying to make amends, he fought the League of Nations with far more bitterness than theretofore, changed Missouri Democrats to his way of thinking, was triumphantly re-elected by 43,000 majority.

When Reed finished this term in the Senate—his third—he retired voluntarily on March 4, 1929, after having represented his state in the upper house of Congress for 18 consecutive years. He returned to Kansas City to resume the practice of law.

presidential nomination, which Al Smith won almost by acclamation at Houston. In 1932, he is again the state's favorite son" candidate, with Missouri's 36 convention votes pledged to him—at least, for the first few ballots.

"We will have in due course of time a return to normal conditions," Reed says. "But the advance towards prosperity will come from the grass roots. It will be born of the energies of our people. It can never be conferred by the government. We are suffering, not from want of necessities or even the luxuries of life, but from a disarrangement and temporary paralysis of our economic machinery.

"These conditions may be traced largely to governmental blunders, both here and throughout the world."

Nor does Reed, always a wet, forget prohibition. He says it is costing the nation many millions of dollars yearly in lost taxes, necessitating huge expenditures for futile attempts at enforcement, and is promoting the interest of the bootlegger and the criminal.

Here is a typical example of the brand of biting sarcasm for which Reed has always been famous:

"In his speech of acceptance, Mr. Hoover said 'The poorhouse is vanishing from amongst us. We shall soon, with the help of God, be in sight of the day when poverty will be banished from this nation.'"

"Evidently," Reed continues, with a smile, "God has dissolved the partnership."

A Fighting Career

Throughout the long story of his life there appears repeated proof of Jim Reed's statement: "Fighting, fighting, fighting. . . everything I've ever got in this world I've had to fight for."

His struggles began early. Orphaned at 8 by the death of his father, he and an older brother had to fight to support their widowed mother on a farm in Iowa, to which the family had moved after his birth near Mansfield, Ohio, in 1861.

He fought to get an education during the three months of winter that the country schools ran, he fought to continue his studies at Coe College, he fought poverty to study law in a law office, he fought his way into politics as prosecuting attorney at Kansas City. He fought his way into the mayor's office at Kansas City for two terms, he fought his way into the U. S. Senate in 1910, fought his way back there in 1916 and again in 1922.

The silver-haired veteran, "always appearing as elegant as if he had just stepped from a handbox, was admittedly one of the greatest orators in the Senate. But Washington observers found little lovely about him. He was a man given to lashing and ripping sarcasm, a man given to sour and bitter moods who could hate with a passion. It is even said that Jim Reed laid awake at night just to hate Woodrow Wilson.

Reed vs. Wilson

The historic break between the men—which found Reed the chief Democratic opponent of Wilson's cherished League of Nations—had its beginning with the debate on the Federal Reserve act.

Wilson tried to rush the act through Congress; Reed demanded hearings and succeeded in making 64 amendments before the bill finally was passed. Prior to that time, Reed had supported Wilson's measures and had voted for the declaration of war "and every dollar, every man, every ship

Bronner Summarizes French Position on War Debts at Lousanne

BY MILTON BRONNER

European Manager, NEA Service

LONDON.—If Congress is putting down as part of the national income repayments of war debts by the European allies, it had better take a squint at the conference at Lausanne and immediately cut out all estimated sums from that source. It will save a lot of grief and pain afterwards, for continental Europe has about made up its mind to pay Uncle Sam nothing.

There is no use kidding any longer. On June 16 the European conference on War Reparations and War Debts began.

On July 1 the Hoover debt holiday comes to an end.

The European debtors of America, England excepted, have all along made it plain that they could not and would

Taxpayers Ass'n. To Ask Sweeping Reductions Here

Hempstead County Group Organized in Hope Thursday Morning

HEADED BY FOSTER

Will Ask Lower Salaries for All of Public Officials

Organization of a Hempstead County Taxpayers Association was perfected at a spirited mass meeting of merchants, farmers, business and professional men at the city hall Thursday morning. Approximately 50 persons attended.

L. A. Foster was elected chairman, and S. H. Briant was nominated as temporary secretary for the organization.

The purpose of the meeting was explained by Attorney O. A. Graves, who was the first speaker. He said the association was to be a county organization for the purpose of lowering taxes, to reduce county and city expense, and to cut the salaries of every city and county official of Hempstead.

To Name Executive Body

Steve Carrigan, the next speaker, suggested that the organization appoint five men to serve as an executive committee for the purpose of securing as many signatures as possible of Hempstead taxpayers to join the organization. Chairman Foster said that he would appoint this committee before the next meeting.

Short speeches in which the politicians were scored were made by Dr. J. H. Henry, J. P. Brundidge, W. K. Loney, Dr. J. H. Martindale, all of Hope; Lester Wade, of Elvins, and V. M. England, of Sny Le Springs. The speakers pledged their support to the organization in an effort to relieve the taxpayers of a load they were unable to carry. Mrs. F. W. Philbrick also made a short talk before the body.

In a short speech, Dr. A. C. Kolb said, "If meetings like this had been held 10 years ago the politicians of the country would not have us in such a muddle as we are today." He denounced grafting office-holders and urged that the taxpayers association petition the legislative committee to "sign on the dotted line in regard to their stand toward various questions confronting the people."

Taxed for Generation

John P. Cox said: "The business and professional men have been suffering from heavy taxation every since the Spanish-American war and it is high time for us to do something about it." He pointed out numerous drug articles that carried an excessive tax. He urged reduction in county and city expenses to permit greater economy.

Attorney Graves said: "The condition of the country as a whole warrants a reduction in salaries for all office-holders." He suggested that the executive committee of the taxpayers association go before every city and county officials and petition them to take a cut in salary.

Dr. J. L. Cannon, pastor of First Methodist church, commended the newly-organized association and said, "The preacher, merchant, lawyer, farmer and all of us should get into politics before the next election or the politicians will have us in the hands of the receiver."

The second meeting of the association is scheduled to be held next Thursday morning, June 30, at 10 o'clock at the city hall. A large crowd is expected, the organization inviting every Hempstead county taxpayer to attend.

Barber Out-Talked

DENVER.—Jess Haley, barber, found himself outtalked when he was taken to court by state-inspector William Timbel. It seems that Timbel was inspecting Haley's shop and found an unsanitary lump of alum therein. He started an argument with Haley, who, when he ran out of words bounced a shaving mug off Timbel's head. Haley was fined $10.

French Warm Up to U. S. Proposal

Hoover and Stimson Enthusiastic Over New Turn in Events for Arms Reduction Plan at Geneva

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—An optimistic day.

Secretary Stimson expressed satisfaction with the early reception given the proposed 15-billion-dollar reduction plan at the Swiss city.

The French government, reported in early press dispatches as being cold to the American suggestion, was said by Stimson as "apparently warming up to it."

Stanley Lee Again Freed by Parnell

Hot Springs Banker Had Served 5-Year Federal Term

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Governor Parnell freed Stanley Lee, former Hot Springs banker, on an indefinite furlough Thursday following conviction for the murder of W. E. Haley, Poplar Bluff filling station operator, during a robbery last January 18. The boy showed no emotion as sentence was pronounced upon him.

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Spending toward a final vote on the Democratic unemployment relief bill Thursday, the senate rejected an amendment to make advances to the states on bonds for educational and hospitalization purposes.

Blonde Socks Taxi While Parking Car

Motors Dash for Same Space—Girl Biffs Man on Jaw

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—The young blond "feminine driver" of the shiny sedan set her eye on a parking place on a downtown street, and headed for it just at the driver of a taxicab did likewise.

Fenders bumped. Brakes squealed. The race for the space, the only one available in the block, ended in a draw.

The girl set her brakes, climbed deliberately out of her car and walked to the taxicab. With one hand she opened the door. With the other she lifted a punch to the taxi-driver's jaw. Nearby spectators, convulsed with laughter, heard the "smack" plainly. "Why don't you watch where you're going?" the girl demanded.

"Why don't you?" was the weak retort, as the cab driver moved a trifle farther away.

The girl had more to say. She said it, speaking in plain and none too complimentary terms, then entered her car and drove away.

Who Wouldn't

LONDON.—If you were in the shoes of J. Rutherford Chalmers, 27-year-old bachelor member of Parliament, you'd probably do the same as he is doing. Under the will of his late great uncle, Sir John Rutherford, it was specified that Chalmers would receive an inheritance of about $1,500,000 if he would adopt the surname of his great uncle.

Light Never Varies

WASHINGTON.—Despite its race through space of billions of miles, and at a rate of 186,000 miles a second, light is always constant, according to experiments conducted by the Carnegie Institution. Light from the sun and light from other objects at a much greater distance from the earth reaches this globe at the same velocity.

Minnesota Plants Millions Young Fish

ELY, Minn.—(AP)—Minnesota has been planting fish by the millions for the sake of her Isaac Walton visitors of the future.

Local sportsmen and the state fish and game department have planted 16,000,000 pike fry from the state hatchery at Tower in nearby lakes, while in Burnside lake, one of the favorite sports for fishermen from all over the country, 2,500,000 fry were placed.

Oklahoma Fire Crew to Organize "Navy"

OKLAHOMA CITY.—(AP)—Oklahoma City may have a "navy" as a result of the flood which recently claimed 10 lives.

Organization of a fire department motorboat squadron for emergency rescue work has been proposed to the city manager by Fire Chief George Goff.

If the plan is approved the members, clad in swimming suits, will drill weekly.

Too Much Sleep

PORTLAND, Ore.—Louis Sandheim and Aaron Holtz were backing an ordinance for daylight delivery of milk because their slumbers were interrupted in the early morning hours by noisy milk trucks. Commissioner A. L. Barbur got up and gave the following impassioned speech: "This sleeping business has become a tad with people who have nothing else to do. I only get four or five hours of sleep a night and I'm on deck every morning. There's no sense in sleeping eight or nine hours."

Harahan Estimate Increased $9,400, Audit Body Hears

Resident Engineer Forced to Include Items Without Check-Up

EQUIPMENT RESOLD

Pine Bluff Engineer 'Sold' Man Who 'Sold' State

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Payment of contractors' claims on bridge work connected with the Harahan viaduct without approval of the resident engineer, and the sale to the State Highway Department of road equipment purchased only a short time before from the highway district engineer, were described by witnesses before the Highway Audit Commission Thursday.

O. E. Tapley, Pulaski county bridge commissioner and former sales manager of an equipment company, refused to tell the audit commission what he paid Albert Madding, of Pine Bluff, former district highway engineer, for three pieces of road equipment which he sold to the State Highway Department for $3,300.

Madding previously testified, however, that Tapley had paid him about $2,200.

Roy Leighton, of Memphis, who was resident engineer for the State Highway Department in bridge construction on the Harahan viaduct, testified at the direction of Charles S. Christian, chief highway engineer, that he was required to include items aggregating $9,400 in his final estimate on one project without being given time or opportunity to determine if the items were correct.

Man and Wife Are Seized by Robbers

Carried Off by Trio, Believed to Have Robbed Louisiana Bank

MONROE, La.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Taylor were abducted from their plantation home near Warsaw Landing, in Northeast Louisiana, early Thursday by three men believed to be the trio who, without being given time or opportunity to determine if the items were correct.

The bandits have been sought by a huge posse, with bloodhounds for the past 48 hours in the swamp country here.

ROCK ISLAND, Ill.—Company was what Ted Lamp craved as he sat on his front porch. Along came a stranger, and Lamp invited him to sit down and talk. The stranger talked so long that Lamp finally fell asleep, lulled to slumber by the chatter of the man. When he awoke he found the stranger had departed, taking with him the change Lamp had in his pockets.

Only Cut His Finger

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—Just as a train came down the track, H. R. Stallsworth decided he'd cross in his car. Of course he came out second best in the resulting crash, but the odd thing about it is that all he suffered was a cut finger and a bruised wrist. His car was entirely demolished in the collision.

BEG PARDON

A regrettable error occurred in the handling of the last news-item passed for yesterday's edition of The Star. The annual Masonic election was labeled "Elks club" and while the official designations showed clearly it was a Masonic election, The Star wishes to apologize. The error was caught and corrected at the end of the city edition, 1,000 papers, and the story appeared correctly in the 1,900 copies of the mail edition. However, the corrected story is being re-run on another page of today's Star.

Our Changing Nation

JUST as if the nation did not have enough problems already, it is now being asserted that we are about to enter a period of declining population.

Dr. P. K. Whelpton of the Scripps Foundation for Research in Population Problems has been studying the census figures and he finds that they forecast such a period very clearly.

Between 1920 and 1930, for example, there was a smaller percentage of the population under five years of age than in former years. There were, in fact, fewer children under five than between the ages of five and ten—the first time in American history that this had happened.

This, of course, reflects quite clearly a declining birth rate; and since immigration has been cut down to almost nothing it seems fairly certain that in a few years the population of the United States will not only stop increasing but will begin to decrease—very slightly, perhaps, but nevertheless perceptibly.

This will have a number of effects on national life.
 In the first place, American industry will no longer have the constant expanding domestic market that it has always had in other years.

Cities will no longer show steady constant growth. It will no longer be possible for a cunning speculator to buy up farm land beyond the suburbs and, by holding on to it until the city has expanded to meet it, make himself rich.

Land values in general, instead of rising slowly but surely, as they have ever since the Revolution—except for brief intervals of depression—will remain constant, or will even suffer a slow decline.

In other words, business and industry will have to accommodate themselves to an entirely new situation. From the very beginning, we have had something very like a continuous boom in this country—but it's about over now.

Senate Investigations

THE various investigations which the Senate undertakes from time to time are usually criticized bitterly by some men as being expensive and productive of no real benefits commensurate with the time and money spent.

Recent reports summarizing the work done by the famous Nye committee which looked into the affairs of the Continental Trading Co. furnish a pretty good answer to that sort of criticism.

To date the government has collected nearly $6,000,000 as a direct result of this committee's work. It got more than $3,600,000 from Henry M. Blackmer for evaded income taxes.
 It got more than $1,300,000 from another man, whose name hasn't been made public, in the same way. It got $600,000 in back taxes from Continental principals. It got other lesser sums.

And the entire investigation cost the taxpayers just $25,000.

Advice From London

A MID all the dolorous forecasts produced by the depression it is comforting to find a prominent London economist urging English investors to put money into American securities.

The present moment, this British expert declares, offers "an amazing opportunity"; increases in security values of 300 per cent within a few years, with corresponding yields, seem to him very probable.

As a result of this forecast, London newspapers are predicting a strong switch of English capital to the United States in the near future.

Whether or not this Englishman is correct in his optimistic view is perhaps a matter for argument; but it is at least encouraging to find that there is one economist who is not moved to despair by the sight of our present difficulties.

Avalon Mobilizes Sportsmen for Battle With Swordfish

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
 NEA Service Writer

AVALON, Calif.—Residents of this little town, on picturesque Catalina Island, 22 miles off the coast of Southern California, are extra busy these days. Boats are being remodeled and painted, hotels renovated and supplies purchased—all because of a fish family.

No signs of the depression are visible as the town prepares for the army of sportsmen coming within the next month for the annual summer onslaught on the marlin and broadbill swordfish, champion warriors of the seven seas.

A small fortune will be divided among boat owners, hotel keepers and restaurant proprietors here.

Deep sea anglers will tell you that tracking the swordfish to his watery lair and then fighting him with a thin line and light rod is the biggest thrill on earth, and that the waters of the Pacific off this semi-tropical island contain more swordfish than any other place in the world—771 of them were caught there last summer.

Mr. Marlin and his first cousin, the broadbill swordfish, weigh from 100 to 800 pounds and are good food, though they are valued higher for their fighting qualities, sometimes battling for five to 10 hours before being landed.

The bones of the upper jaw in the marlin and broadbill are consolidated and form a long, rigid, sword-like beak, which is used with deadly effect in fighting larger fish and sometimes used in their battles with humans. Many boats at Avalon are literally studded with broken-off swords of these fighting fish.

The Catalina Island Tuna Club has standard specifications for tackle. A line that has a breaking strain of not more than 65 pounds, and a wooden rod not less than five feet long and not weighting more than 13 ounces are termed "heavy tackle."

Light tackle outfits are composed of lines that break at 26 pounds and rods weighing six ounces. Several kinds of reels are used, most of them holding about 1000 feet of line. Extra equipment includes a heavy leather belt, upon which the butt of the rod is rested during the sea battles with the swordfish. Many outfits cost nearly $1000.

Often the swordfish slashes at the bait several times with his bill before taking it, but when he does, he makes the water churn as he leaps into the air.

The experienced fisherman waits for this strike with his feet braced for the swordfish is capable of pulling a man overboard. With the fish securely hooked, the angler, prepared for any emergency, settles down for a long battle.

That swordfish has a pack of tricks.
 He leaps into the air time and again in an attempt to dislodge the hook, slashing at the line with his bill as he drops back into the water.

 Failing, the fish races away at express train speed, sometimes running out more than 1000 feet of line before suddenly changing his course and returning to the boat. The angler's boatman must act quickly then, swerving
 the craft to avoid the furious charge.

Maneuvers often continue for hours.
 The fish either breaks the line, dis-lodges the hook, or tires himself out and is drawn to the side of the boat, where he is gaffed and pulled on board.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah.—By reading a good book for two hours a day, Kenneth Ensign, 19, can escape serv-years to life. These terms, passed by Judge James H. Wolfe after Ensign had entered a plea of guilty to a robbery, are to be checked regularly by the youth's sister, to whom he has been paroled. The reading course is to extend over a period of two years.

MY SUPPORTERS SAY

Judge Kirby has been "nailed to the cross" he has carried since the World War, for making his campaign on an apology for his attitude toward the late Ex-President Woodrow Wilson in the trying days of 1917.

Doctor Brough's tough old hide is hanging on the fence he has erected around the power trust.

Vint Miles has torn his pants on the barbed wire of the Insull interests trying to climb into the Utilities corral....

And "Buddy" Bodenhamer—the doughboy's friend—still plays pewee with the officers of the American Legion Posts.

Mrs. Caraway is still in a receptive mood.

And Bill Hutton is singing "How Dry I am."

My friends, this is the lineup in the U. S. Senator's race. Look well to your own interests. Study the records and affiliations of each of the candidates and decide for yourself who can and will most truly represent the people in Washington.
 If you do this conscientiously I shall have no fear of the outcome.

The support I am receiving is beyond my most sanguine expectations at this stage of the campaign, and I am encouraged to believe that I am setting the pace.

 Candidate for United States Senator

and every gun the president asked to carry on the war."

The split gradually widened and in 1919 Wilson came back from Europe, riding on the crest of a world-wide wave of popularity and bringing with him his cherished League of Nations covenant for adoption by the Senate. For a time, it seemed inevitable that it would be accepted; Wilson's tremendous prestige seemed certain to carry it over.

Jim Reed, the fighter, sprang into action as the leading Democratic foe to Wilson's dream.

"I decline," he shouted in a fiery speech late in 1919, "to help set up any government that is greater than that established by my fathers, greater than that baptized in the blood of patriots from the lanes of Lexington to the forests of the Argonne, greater than that sanctified by the tears of all the mothers who heroic sons have gone down to sustain its glory and its independence. I decline to set up any government greater than the government of the United States of America!"

The fight was on. It raged in the Senate, it raged throughout the country as Jim Reed carried his battle to the people with speaking engagements and defied threatening crowds to fling his challenge. It colored the presidential campaign of 1920 that sent Cox down in defeat before the Harding landslide. It extended into the Missouri senatorial race of 1922 which found Reed turning defense into offense.

Today, the historic league battle is a memory. Woodrow Wilson is dead of a broken heart. And Jim Reed... "Fighting, fighting, always fighting" turns now to new issues as he seeks to win the seat in the White House that his arch enemy held for eight long years.

"Young America" at the Saenger Today

Frank Borzage's latest production is "Young America" which comes to the Saenger today. Seppner Tracey, Doris Kenyon, Ralph Bellamy and Beryl Mercer have the chief adult roles, with Tommy Conlon, Raymond Borzage and Dawn O'Day in the juvenile leads. There have been hundreds of books, plays and motion pictures turned out dealing with the home life in this hectic age. They have discussed the domestic existence from every conceivable angle except one. That one is the angle of boyhood. What do these young people think of marriage and divorce today? Of our new educational theories and methods? Of their home surroundings in this age of radios and fast cars and prohibition and mothers' clubs and dozens of other outside interests undreamed of 30 years ago? Such questions are said to be answered in an unforgettable manner in the picture "Young America."

Genius Free Man by Day, Spends Nights in Jail

To serve justice without cheating science, a genius whose skill can bring the most remote stars within reach of astronomers is the unparalleled problem confronting the courts and prosecuting authorities in St. Charles, Illinois.

The genius, John E. Mellish, of St. Charles, is one of the four men in the world capable of making the sensitive telescopic lenses upon which all astronomical knowledge depends.

He faces 20 years' imprisonment for a crime he has confessed, involving his 15-year-old daughter. What shall the law do with him?

Impressed by eminent scientists' pleas for mercy, courts wondered if Mellish might be sentenced to "20 years of nights" in jail, while being escorted daily to his workshop to grind out lenses and work on delicate telescopes.

When State's Attorney George D. Carberry would not consent to this, a plan was evolved to build a laboratory within the walls of a state penitentiary so that Mellish might continue his work while satisfying society for his crime. The proposal awaits approval of state officials.

Meanwhile, Mellish remains in nominal custody of the Kane county sheriff, passing his nights in the county jail at Geneva and walking out with a guard each morning to his workshop. He has been a free man by day and a prisoner by night since he was indicted nine months ago. Mellish's interest in astronomy began in his boyhood when he was given a $2 telescope at Christmas. He soon outgrew this and bought another for $19. Then because of his astonishing amateur astronomical observations and the remarkable lenses he had made at home, he was given a job at Yerkes observatory where his fame became world-wide.

Mellish will be brought to trial soon and the unusual arrangements for his confinement defined by Circuit Judge John Nowhall. The charge against him was brought by his wife, who has borne him 11 children.

Contract Bridge

Without a doubt the most interesting hands of a tournament are those which it is most difficult to describe. Tournament bridge is not always perfect by any means, and the results of some hands are very interesting. Take, for instance, the following hand in which Paul Benhoff of Cleveland who, with his partner, recently won the Ohio State auction pair championship, put one of his opponents to sleep with two aces:

The Bidding

The bidding as it actually occurred at the table was South one club, Mr. Benhoff was sitting in the North and bid one diamond. South responded with three clubs, Mr. Benhoff then bid three spades and to his surprise South carried it to four spades.

♥ A-K-J-10-3-2		♥ A-K-J-10-3-2

The Play

We can easily see that if East cashes his two aces, that West is bound to make the king and queen of spades and the contract will be defeated on a trick. You can imagine the interest created in this hand when after the smoke had cleared away, it was discovered that Mr. Benhoff had made five odd at spades, and this is the way that the hand was played:

East, instead of opening either one of his aces, led the eight of clubs, which was won in dummy with the ace. The king of clubs was returned and Mr. Benhoff discarded one of his hearts. He then continued with the jack of clubs from dummy. West made a nice play in refusing to trump—he discarded a heart and Mr. Benhoff discarded his other heart.

The next play was the deuce of clubs from the dummy and again West discarded a heart, and Mr. Benhoff trumped with the three of spades.

He next led the deuce of diamonds. East should make sure of a diamond trick and go in with his ace, but he thought that certainly his partner could beat the nine spot, so he played a small diamond and dummy's nine held the trick.

The ace of spades was then led from dummy and when it was dropped, Mr. Benhoff, who had refused to trump the king of spades, then led the queen of hearts from the dummy and with the five of spades, Mr. Benhoff took the king of diamonds, and Benhoff ruffed in dummy with seven of spades. He then led the deuce of clubs from dummy, which was refused to trump and discarded a heart, as did Mr. Benhoff.

His next play was the king of clubs from dummy, which was refused to trump, discarding a heart, and Mr. Benhoff discarded the jack of diamonds and then the queen of hearts.

Mr. Benhoff now held the king of one spade and the queen of diamonds. West held the king, queen and jack of spades. If West trumped with the nine, Mr. Benhoff would make the queen of spades, while if West trumped with the queen of spades, Mr. Benhoff would discard his queen of diamonds and was bound to win his last spade.

All that he lost was the king of queen of spades!

He now has the car in running order, and has refused many cash offers and a new automobile for it. He uses it to drive around town. Esslinger, Beatrice Emerson and the car are shown above.

There still must be some money around. More than 25,000 people paid $45,000 to see Strangler Lewis and Dick Shikat wrestle in Madison Square Garden's new bowl at Long Island City. The top price was $5.50, which is about what the top should have been for Schmeling-Sharkey.

Speed of Spheres, Past Imagination

Earth Rotating Eastward at 1,040 Miles Per Hour

(Professor of Astronomy, University of Illinois)

URBAN, Ill. — (AP) — Anyone who drives his car at the rate of a hundred miles an hour is likely to tell his friends about it. Yet this is very slow going compared with the speed with which the earth is taking us through space.

Consider the earth's rotation. It is whirling us around toward the east at the rate of 1,040 miles an hour at the equator.

The speed is reduced to 800 miles an hour at New York. Fortunately the air whirled around with us. If it were not so, there would be a continual east wind more violent than the severest tornado.

Then, too, the earth is taking us around the sun at the rate of 65,000 miles an hour. If there were telegraph poles along the great curved track of the earth, they would fly past amazingly fast. But all the objects in the celestial scenery are far away except the moon which goes with us in this journey around the sun.

Next, the earth and the other planets are the sun's companions on a long voyage through the star fields. We are speeding straight ahead at the rate of 40,000 miles an hour, steering our course nearly in the direction of Vega.

Vega is the brilliant blue star nearly overhead in the evening skies of July. In the course of a year we move toward it four times as far as our distance from the sun.

Finally we are flying at the rate of 700,000 miles an hour toward the constellation Cepheus. This constellation can be found in the northern sky, to the right of the pole star in the early evening in July. Some people imagine that its principal stars outline a steeple, lying on its side at this season with the point toward the pole star.

In this rapid journey toward Cepheus we have plenty of celestial company. All the stars around us are moving this way also. It is believed that we are taking part in the rotation of the vast system of the Milky Way around its center in the star cloud of Sagittarius 50,000 light years away.

This great star cloud is now visible in the southeast in the early evening, and low in the south at midnight. It is the brightest and most spectacular part of the fine region of the Milky Way that we see in summer.

But the earth does not hold the record for high speed. Recent observations at Mount Wilson Observatory appear to show that some of the remote spirals far beyond the Milky Way are speeding away from us at the rate of 25,000,000 miles an hour. This is high speed, indeed.

In Wrong League

Mr. George Moriarty, the umpire, is in the wrong league. Think of the fun George would have had in that free-for-all between the Cubs and Robins the other day! The return match between the two teams will be staged in Chicago. Watch for it!

Metcalfe's Speech

Ralph Metcalfe, the Marquette Shadow who is regarded as sure to win one or two Olympic events after his recent sensational races, evidently is majoring in English at Marquette. In a radio address, he said, "I will endeavor to make every effort to try to win out there in California." And, folks, you'll have to admit the young man is going to give the Olympics the old college try.

These Nine Years

On June 23, 1923, I moved to Hope, and on that day began spending money with Hope people and Hope enterprises.

During the nine years I have spent more than $25,000.00, over 90 per cent of which I have paid to Hope institutions and people.

During the same nine years I have paid to beneficiaries on account of deceased policy holders, in, and directly surrounding Hope more than

Still, I have had to earn 75 per cent of my living away from Hope, in places where I spent practically no money!

I wonder why this should be the case? I have noticed how welcome I have seemed to be when I was paying for a hat, a pair of shoes, a suit of clothes, or an automobile. Still when I present a piece of literature suggesting my desire to place some of my life insurance, the attitude as a rule, shows clearly what they think, while most of them wait until I've paid my bill, and have left, before saying it.

Here it is: "To hell with your life insurance. When you get hold of a dollar again, come back, and we'll smile at you."

I have no apology to make for offering the contracts which I offer, because my 18 years connections has proven to me that the people who are running this little company, are real men! They write every form of policy from the lowest rate term policy, to a single premium policy, all of which are thoroughly in line with other companies.

I have never made a practice of imposing myself on you, nor keeping myself in your way, 'til you can't do your work. Still, I would appreciate some of your life insurance business, and shall be glad to show you our contracts, whether you see fit to buy or not.
